

Mary Berry to revisit childhood home and wrangle bulls in one-off Countryfile special

Watch out, Matt Baker! Queen of Cakes Mary Berry will be taking over in a special edition of Countryfile.

The ex-Great British Bake Off judge will be joining Matt next week for a one-off event which will be dedicated to her life farming, and how growing up in rural England has helped shape her career.

Baker and The Baker – we can already see the spin-off in the works.

Next Sunday, Mary will be taking on the role of guest editor for the Countryfile episode, and will see her track her life connected to farming, including her early memories as a young farmer, and her career as a whole.

Mary said: 'Countryfile, for me, is an iconic programme. I was immensely honoured to be asked to be guest editor and loved every moment.

'I am passionate about seeking the very best local produce and how important food education is.

'Having grown up during the war, it made me realise the importance of home grown produce.'

